This is to remind all concerned that the 1,000 Mile service is to be performed entirely free of charge to owners with the exception of any actual lubricants that are used. It appears that some dealers are charging a supplemental "lubrication service charge" and in some cases an oil filter is being charged to the customer.

It is confirmed that an oil filter change under normal conditions of operation is not necessary at the 1,000 Mile service interval. The maintenance schedules first call for a filter replacement at the "A" service, which is at 6,000 miles.
